

U.S. has hopes for 'moderate' Burg

By DAVID LANDAU Post Diplomatic Correspondent Dr. Yosef Burg has risen in the eatimation of the U.S. The Interior Minister, who is the head of Israel'e negotiating team to the autonomy talks, was the subject of an in-depth study prepared by the U.S. embassy bere recently - and he emerged from it, according in informed sourcee, as a much more significant figure than the State Department had been tending to consider him. Burg will lead the six-minister Ieracli delegation at the first business session of the autonomy negotiations in Alexandria today. Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan. who until yesterday was in two minds about participating in the talks, has been persuaded by Prime Minister Menahem Begin to attend. Dayan's recorvations are understood to have been both over Burg's chairmanship of the Israeli team and over the "internai guidelines" laid down by the cabinet whieb, in the foreign minister's view, are too tough and too detailed to facilitate negotiation. It was as a result of Dayan's and Defence Minister Ezer Waizman's 10 F opposition to the "guidelines" that Premier Begin declade not to table them formally at this stage. The 1.0

premier reconfirmed that docision yesterday. Paradoxically, the spectre of a disgruntled Dayan waiting in the wings to be summoned to salvage tho talks Maria has strengthened Burg'e standing in American eyes. U.S. analysts know that Burg himsolf is acutely aware of. the imputed challenge by Dayan, and of the expectatione in Washington, Cairo and Jerusalcm that the resourceful and experienced terior minister. This awareness, say the U.S. analysts, will spur Burg on to over-greater efforts to succeed unaided.

The Americans reason, too - as do Egypt's intelligence experts, who have formed their own serious assessment of Burg - that the seasoned, septuagenarian politician, with 30 years of ministerial experience behind him, would not have undertaken this task had he not been determined to succeed at it. Burg, they argue, would hardly want to culminate his long career with a monumental failure in the most important assignment ever entrusted to him.

For these reasons, and others, the U.S. and Egypt are hoping that Burg, as the talks proceed, will pry himself loose from the hard-line position of his National Religious Party'e right wing, and revert to the more middle-of-the-road stance advocated by sections of his own Lamine faction within the party.

The Americans are hoping too, therefore, that a "moderate bloc." comprising Burg, Weisman and Dayan will emerge within the Israeli negotiating tsam. (There is no reading yet on how Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir of the Democratic at will shape up during the talks.)

U.S. diplomat James Leonard, who will represent chief negotiator George Strauss at today's session, was impressed, according to in-formed sources, by Burg's intellect and affability when he met with the interior minister in Jerusalem 10 days ago.

The U.S. delegation also took note, at the opening session in Beersheba on May 25, of the fact that Burg changed "never" to "not" in the phrase in his speecb "Israel will not ..... agree to ..... the establishment of a Palestinian state." There was no change in the policy itself, of course. Burg totally rejected the notion of Paleetinian Arab statebood. Nevertbeloee, the U.S. team reported back to the White House and the State Department that the Israeli chairman had avoided the word "never" which appeared in his prepared statement.

The omission was apparently ecen as a mark of wisdom. "Never," an American source noted, "is a long Meanwhilo, nfficials in Jerusalem were wondering last night whether Davan's decision to take part in the talks after all will mean an end to the quasi-boycott which, they felt, his ministry has been imposing on the negotiations to date. These officials say the Foreign Ministry played no part in the administrative and logistical arrangements either for the opening session in Beersheba or for today'e meeting in Alexandria.

But the Foreign Ministry itself denied any "boycott" and says it is extending any assistance required by the other departments involved. Indeed, Interior Ministry Director-General Haim Kubersky telephoned Foreign Ministry Director-General Yosef Cicchanover yesterday. to deny that he had any complaints about a "boycott" and to assure the

Throughout the day the buildozers were parked nearby in accordance with an arrangement with the Peace Now demonstrators, who had squatted here since Saturday. Late on Saturday night the

The chief immigration officer at Mehrabad airport told Reutere that permission for the flight had been refused hecauee there are no dipiomatle relations between Teheran and Tripoli, and because Libya does not recognize Iran's territorial integrity.

The incident is likely to strain Iran's relations with yet another Arab state. It has become embroiied this month in a quarrei with Its western neighbour Iraq, alleging Iraqi border violations and air attacks on Iranian villages.

Aguda vows walkout if J'lem stadium goes up

By ABRAHAM RABINOVICH Jerusalem Post Reporter

In what Teddy Kollek termed the most eerious potential orisis in his 13 years as mayor of Jerusalem, the ultra-religious members of the City Council threatened last night to end their long-standing coailtion agreements over the issue of the eports stadium being built in northern Jerusalem.

Tbs move boded a major kulturkampf in Jerusalem between religious and secular Jaws. 'There will be Jswish blood epilled," shouted Agudat Ylerael faction leader, Rabbl Shmuel Shaulson, as he and the other ultra-religious coun-cil members etalked out of ths meeting. Kollek said afterwards that a basic principle of his administration from the beginning had been to include the uitra-reilgioue partlee in bis municipal coalitions in order to mitigate the natural polarization between the eecular and Orthodox communities in Jerusalem. This polarization had in the past led to violent conflicts between the two groupe. Even the coalition agreements under Kollek have not managed to stifle completely the natural antagonisms over Sabbath desecration and other issues.

"I've tried for 13 years to keep the religious and secular communities in a spirit of coexistence," said Kollek. "If this (stadium issue) leads to a break, it would be the toughest thing to happen in the city in 13 years. I see Nis as a cerious crisis." Political observers eee Aguda and seat council, succumbing to moun-ting preesurs within the ultra-orthodox community against the stadium, despite the parties' own desire to stay within the coalition and precerve their conciderable bargaining power over funding for religious institutions. Last night Shaulson said the two factions would recommend to their party councils that they pull out of the coalition unless Kollek announces that the stadium will not be built. Koliek said be would make no such announcement.

The two factions' departure from the coalition would not affect Koliek'e One Jerusalam Party. which holds an absolute majority with 16 of the council's 31 seats. The National Religious Party, which holds three ssats, also called for an end to the etadium project in Shuafat. But the NRP pointedly did not threaten to leave the coalition.

Deputy Mayor Elad Peled noted that the coalition agreement signed by Agudn clearly states Kollek's intention to build a stadium in Shuafat, as well as the Aguda's option to pull out of the coalition if the stadium leads to a violation of the Sabbath. Kollek said he was willing to advocate that games be played on Saturday night rather than during the Sabbath. But the ultra-religious community is now objecting to n tadium not because of the Sabbath but because it represente "Helienization," Kollek charged.

Groundwork on the 25,600-seat etadium in northern Jerusalem got under way several months ago. Construction is to begin in the fall.

Electric Co. plans to bill

in advance

By SHLOMO MAOZ Post Economic Reporter

The Israel Electric Corporation plans to bill customere in advance and not only for actual consumption, as has been the case until now, the electric company said yesterday. Energy Minister Yitzhak Moda'i authorized the billing change, which will gradually result in consumers being billed "ongoing charges" for up to $2 per cent of their previons two months' charges.

The electric company hopes this way to advance some IL600m. in payments, and says that the new billing procedure is aimed at cutting the credit period currently given to consumers.

The new arrangement is actually a price increase, since the previous billing arrangement took into consideration the credit period. The inflation rate is the main cause of the company'e demand to take advance payment on electricity consumption.

The Social Affairs Ministry yesterit'll day announced the formation of a special unit to deal with all aspects of drug abuse. But at least one veteran in the fisid expressed doubts as to whether the new team would actually be able to take any effective action.

The team is to be beaded by Dr. "Nahman Ben-Yehuda, an Israeli with U.S. training in treating drug abuse. According to a ministry announcement, the team will deal with all aspects of prevention and treatment

But Prof. Shlomo Einstein, director of the Jerusalem Centre for the Prevention of Drug Abuse, pointed out that administratively the problem of drug abuse still comes under the Health Ministry.

The team was set up to supply in-formation to the interministerial committee on drug abuse, which has been dormant for two years, Einstein said.

He pointed out that in order to undertake effective studies, the team would need both money and trained personnel. He expressed doubts as to whether either was available. Finally, he pointed out, the team would not have the power to guarantee that any recommendations it did make were carried out.

Soviets optimistic before Vienna summit with Carter

Ever since Moscow announced last week that It had nccepted n Peking proposal for talks on normalizing relations, there had been much speculation in the West that the move was taken to gain extra leverage in talks with the U.S. "Such epeculative allegations do not withstand criticism," "Pravda" declared. "Bluffing in politics or the plaving of a 'China Card' or any other card in international relations is deeply alien to Soviet diplomacy, the Kremlin newspaper added.

HONGKONG. - Apparently worried about angering the rest of the Arab World, Chinese authorities have refused either to confirm or deny Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's announcement that he has concluded a major arms agreement with Peking.

In response to repeated queries from diplomats and journalists, the Chinese foreign ministry has declined comment on the arms pact that Sadat disclosed in a speech last Tuesday. In its only report on the Sadat speech, the official New China News Agency said that the Egyptians are diversifying their arms suppliers, but pointedly never mentioned China'o participation.

Sources here and in Peking believe the deal calls for China to supply 60 Shenyang F-9s, close-attack fighter jets modelled on the Soviet-made Mig-21. Wire service reports fron Cairo, however, indicate that the Egyptians may have settled for the older Chinese version of the Mig-19. the current mainstay of the Chinese Air Force. Diplomats here speculate that China's reticence is probably due to its fear of arousing the wrath of the Arab countries that are hoycotting Egypt for signing the peace treaty with Israel. The Chinese not only are ideologically committed to the Palestinian Arab cause but have recently multiplied their trade ties to the Arah world and have become indebted to a consortium of Arab banks.

A loan of $500m., China's largest single foreign ohligation, was nrranged in April with the Paris-based Union de Banquee Arabes et Francaises. Among the hanks in the consortium are the Libyan Arah Bank, the Al Ahili Bank of Kuwalt and the Arah Bank Ltd. in Jordan.

China has also boasted publicly that, unlike the U.S. and the Soviet Union, it has never been an "arms dealer," which may be another reason for its tight-lipped attitude. That distinction is rather a subtle one, for the Chinese in the past decade have exported billions of dollars in arme to Cambodia, Pakistan, and to North Vietnam during its war against the U.S. The Chinese say, however, that they are in a special class, because the weapons supplied to Third World countries are not sold and are given with no strings attached Egypt, too, had previously received Chinese arms without charge. Although Sadat said in his Tuesday and bald, by site speech that China's aid was "devoid of ulterior motives," the Chinese weapons deliveries to Egypt began in 1976, immediately after the Soviet Union imposed an arms em-hargo on Cairo and the Egyptians expelled Soviet ai-visers from the country. Like the rest of China's foreign and the seam motivated mostly her ar and ald, arms supplies seem motivated mostly by an anti-Soviet strategy. The Initial Egypt-China military protocol called for the delivery of spare parts and 30 engines for Cairo's Sovietmade Migs, filling the breach left by the Russian pullout. Later In 1976, the Chinese also opened a munitions factory In Egypt and dispatched technicians to maintain file Pa long hair Migs.

In subsequent years, China has also contributed a con-siderable amount of both military and non-military aid w Egypt, though the precise amounts have never heen disclosed. Unwilling to give the U.S. an excuse to increase its ald to Israel, the Egyptians became almost as reticent about their Chinese connection as the Chiocas themselves.

John Franklin Copper. a U.S. nuthority on China's foreign aid programme, receotly estimated that the value of annual Chinese arms deliveries to Egypt may have reached $100m. That is only a email fraction of China's aid to communist countries such as Cambodie or Albania, hut it still qualifies Egypt es China's primary heneficiary in the Middle East.

Analysis have long been puzzled whether the Chinese received anything in return from Cairo. In 1977, rumoun circulated that the Egyptians had turned over a pair of sophisticated Mig-23s to China's air force, enabling it if study the latest Russian designs and update their own technology. However, those reports were never confirmed.

Sadat did not make it clear whether the current tran saction involves a direct sale or another gift from Peking. Military experts estimate that the 60 Migs that will be sent to Cairo could bring upwards of $300m. on the open market.

IN THE FOLKLORE of the Iranian revolution, Iran's college students abroad (about 50,000 in the U.S. alone) played a key role in the move-ment against the shah. They sustained the opposition in exis, they demonstrated against the regime and its American allies, and then — as folklore had it — they would return home to help forge the new nation

It hasn't happened thet wey. Reletively few of the Iranian students in the U.S., even among the 20,000 or eo who were politically ac-tive in the Iranian student movemeni, have come home.

Of those who did, many, like Abdul Azim and Ali, are deeply dissetiafied and for reasons more substantial than the Cotton Bowl.

The government's been taken over hy the right-wing muliahe," Ali complained. "It'e turning into another dictatorship."

"They don't trust us," Abdul Azim added.

Both young men. slightly out of place in the American clothee they ecquired during years at college in . Moanwhile, those who returned for the revolution have mixed feelings. A few, mainly lhose who were membere of the Mosiern Students Members of the Mosiem Students Association that was organized by Ihrahim Yaz, tha Houeton phar-macologist who is now Iran's forcign minister, have landed government jobs. AN ALLEGATION that Ameterdam's wartime Jewish Council may have facilitated the Nazi deporation of Jews has reopened old wounds it Holiand.

The controversy was aroused by a collection in hook form of "Het Joodsche Weekblad" (The Jewisb Weekiy), a community newspaper thet eppeared regularly from April 1941 to Octoher 1943 during the darkest days of the Nazi occupation. The paper reached a peak circula tion of 21,000 and ceased publication only after most of its readers and its editors had heen sent to German death camps. Yet during that entire period, the newspaper — published under the auspices of the Amsterdam Jewish Council — presented a semilance of normality that may have lurcd many Jews to their deaths, says journaliet Dick Houwaart, who arranged the

"The newepaper wae a catastrophic error," aald Houwaart, a 51-year-oid Jew who managed to remain underground during the war. "I think it helped send many Jewe to the camps.

The hook is a 1,300-page volume with an extensive foreword by Houwaart.

It shows in minute detail the escalation of anti-Jewish measures. Among articles aboul Jewieh culture, the newspaper published Nazi edicts and detailed lists of things to take to the camps. "It certainiy did not breathe spiritual resistance," Houwaart can make such a judgment about a group which in despair and decolation was left to its own fate," Herzherg wroie in the "Nleuw Israelltisch Weekhlad'' (New Israeiite Weekly) In Amsterdam.

"During the occupation, the Jewish weekly was welcomed with love," Herzberg said. "As the Jewa heeame increasingly isolated, they yearned for a written word of uplift...,The intention was to make sure a hit of Jewish culture survived." A leafing through the newspaper with henefit of hindsight shows how horror was concealed hy hanality. Apart from a few death notices in the earlier days, there was no hint that Jews were heing sent to their deaths the "lahour camps."

Houwaart aald this was known at the time, while Herzherg denies anybody was aware of the Nazis' "final solution" in which an estimated 104,000 Dutch Jews - 80 per cent of the pre-war total - were slaughtered.

THE ADVERTISEMENTS are perhaps the saddest items of all. One shop offered: 'regulation'style'' name tapes to mark possessions taken to the eamps, and a one-day service to paint names on trunks and bags.

Another merchant offered rucksacks. The cobhier's shop organized by the Jewish Council urged persons eummoned to "lahour service" in Germany to get shoes well repaired before departure. It advertised a six-hour delivery.

A Jewish music hall troupe offered a show entitled, "It's Going To Turn Out Differently Than You Think."

Houwaart accused the paper of actually luring Jews from hiding places. One issue, he said, invited 4,000 Jews to report for labour camp duty io prevent the deportation to eoncentration camps of 700 Jewe aiready under arrest — inpiying thet one type of eamp was worse than another. Another issue told Dutch Jews emigration etll was possible providing applications were duly registered.

HOUWAART was not alone in hie criticism that the newspaper and the Jewish Council, however indirectly, served the interests of the German occupiers. Author Jacoh Presser, in hie history of the persecution of Dutch Jews, accused the leaders of the Council of heing "the instruments of our deadly enemies" even after their murderous purpose was ciear.

Lou de Jong, head of the Dutch government'a War Documentation Institute, also says the Jewish Council contributed to the helpiessneea and isioiation of the Jews.

"The Jewish Weekiy' contributed to the quick deportation of more than 100,000 persons" by preaching resignation, Houwaart said. "It ehouid never have been allowed to appear.

"The Daily Nation" in Nairobi had this editorial reaction: "With all respect to President Machel, his epeech reminds us of many others made in the past hy leadere with prohiems who, in the absence of eolutions or ability to formulate them, look for ecapegoats."

And Machel does have prohlems. The economy of Mozamblque, erippled when most of the 250,000 Portuguese settlers left at the time of Independence in 1975, has come to a near standstill. Attempts at collective peasant farming have not lmproved falling production.

DARK DISEASE CITY OF THE

NAPLES. - The Dark Disease, a" virus infection, has claimed young life here in the last year, and has brought family-loving Neapolitans to the brink of panic.

More than 70 babies have died in the epidemic so far, and although the se has now been identified and shows signs of being brought under control, the anguish is etched deep in the siums where the burden of death has been borne.

Napies contains the only paediatric emergency centre in south Italy, and the Dark Disease epidemic has stretched the health authorities' resources to the limit since it hegan early in 1978.

The strain on hospital workers has begun to show: paediatriclans and paramedicai worksrs in Napies bave threatened wildcat strikes unless overtime contracts are re-negotiated and under-staffing redressed. The city called in the army at the beginning of March as the threat of strikes was stepped up.

Tslevision has shown the pictures of grieving parents following trollies bearing their children into intensive care wards and the tears and disbelief of hereavement. At times, the anguish bordered on panic, and priesis displayed the holy relies of Naples' patron saint to calm the grief-etricken people.

A TEAM of international experts was brought together to help hardpressed Italian virologists identify the mysterious disease, which was giv n ite name "Dark Disease" more hy public and press sentiment then hy anything one. And nithough the experts - from the U.S., Britaln, France and Yugoslavia — did identify the diecase, their equally important contribution, observers now feel, was in stilling panic hy proving to sceptical and worried Neapolitans that everything was under control.

The respiratory disease is more a eoclai disease: lts victime come from the slume of Napies and nearby towns where 70,000 families live in one-room hoveie where the only ventilation is the door on to the street. and where there is often no lavatory or running water.

In these conditions, reepiratory dicease can run riot during the winter months. Naples has eerious slum problems, one of the reasons why its infant mortality rate of 90 per 1,000 is closer to Third World countries than to Europe.

IT TURNED out that Dark Disease was a combination of virusce, mainiy syncytial virus, but including also the "A" and "B" strains of influenza virue, adenovirus, enterovirus and herpes virus.

The combined virus is not unknown - it has been reported in Brilain and in Canada recently, but caused few deaths. What makes It more deadly in Naplee are the tecming elums and accompanying poor sanitation.

Experts expect that as the weather Improves, the disease will recede but it may strike again as it has in the past. It killsd 50 Neapolitan bables in 1977 and about the same number in 1976. It hecomes severe only in young children, but any real hope of eradicating it in Naples would involve elearing of the slums. Early in February, the communist mayor of Napies (Italy'e thirdlargest city with 1.2 million people) went to Rome to ask for money for a bouse-improvement pian that would hring running water to 25,000 homes. The central government eym-pathized hut had, apparently, no more money.

It has been pointed out, bowever, that more than $500m. is still frozen in a fund eet up to fight the 1973 choiera outbreak in Napies — and it is likely to remain that way until the regional administration gets around to doing its accounts.

WHILE DOCTORS in Naples plead for vaccination against the syncytial virus and for more money to be apent on improving housing, hygiene and sanitary conditions, the politicians are arguing about where the moncy is, and how it can be acquired. Complicating matters bas been the dcep division and mistrust between communisis on the Naples town council and the largely Christian Democrat administration in Rome.

Council records chow that rccommendations after a cholera cpidcmic nearly 100 years ago were the same as those being made now. but little scems to have been done. In 1973, in the whole of Campania, the region of which Naples is the main city, 825 infants died because of a mystery virus.

THE PROFESSORS AND THE PRESIDENT

ISRAEL'S aliya and absorption ef-forts were on trial. A group of Jewish professors here on sabbatical were the plaintiffs. Top Jewish Agency and Absorption Ministry officials were on the witness stand. And President Yitzhak Navon, who had invited them to Beit Hanassi for the confrontation, was the presiding Judge.

The 40 academics — experts in such specialized fields ae neurochemistry, eystems analysis, computer science and Greek literature, and all deeply interested in settling here .... had a rare oppor-tunity to discuss their problems with some of the men who determine and implement aliya and absorption policies.

The unusual meeting camo about as the result of a Belt Hanassi reception earlier this year for several dozen professors on sabbatical. After hearing that a number of them were interested in allys, hut overwhchmed by the housing and professional difficulties, Navon invited them back to air their griovanees and complaints before the officials.

It took months to get a final dato, since Agency Executive chairman Aryc Dulzin and Absorption and Housing Minister David Levy were often abroad or too husy. And even when the meeting did take place Levy apologized for not par-ticipating because ho had to be present at the Herut national convention Navon read out typical case histories he had received from soms of the professors, each a tale of woe about aliya emissaries who "didn't tell the truth," joh offers tantalizing-ly dangled but suddenly withdrawn, and — most common — the in-creasingly unreachable price of housing.

knew "back heme," and he hasn't even applied for a merigage yet. (Israel Sun)

to discussion.

"I was born in Israel,", said a middle-aged expert in surface physics from Penn State University, 'I was away for 29 years and now I want to come back. I have a home that'e worth about $70,000, but I don't own it outright. With what's left from the cale I couldn't buy anything here, and I couldn't get a government mortgage if I bought a flat above the ceiling price of IL800,060. To those who tell me to go to a development town to find housing. I say that in such a place I'll never find a job."

Another Sabra professor bemoan-ed "the low standard of huilding" in Israel: an acquaintance who ob-tained an Amidar immigrant flat in Jerusalem's Neve Ya'acov quarter had found that the defective plumbing made it impossible to throw paper down the toilet.

A computer expert who has been offered several jobs commented that his meagre roconrees would preclude even buying a toilet at Israel's current astronomic prices.

"In Loe Angeles, where I como from," he said, "you can pay 20 per cent of the cost of a house as a down payment and pay off the reat over 25 years or more. But here you have to put down 80 per cent immediately. Who has that kind of money?"

A radiologist complained that Israeli housing seems to be huilt without privacy in mind something that is taken for granted by Americans. "Wc are used to closing the door and having peace and quiet. Israeli walls are so thin and flats so crowded together that you have no privacy.'

. The radiologist, who is on sab-hatical at Hadassah, had found a two-room house with an ontdoor toilet in southern Jerusalem. The price, he said, was twice that of his 11-room villa in the U.S. One young statistician said be was esenting a colution to the housing problem of potential olim in Rehovot on behalf of six other scientists who, like himself, are spending the year at the Weizmann Institute.

'We want decent housing, and we want to stay together so that we can continue to enjoy the sense of community we have developed."

An unproductive orchard near the ampus is for salo, be reported. "We aren't looking for a handout. All we want is advice from the various authorities on how to cut through the red tape and convert tho agricultural land to residential land so that we can huild homes."

A YOUNG student couple from Weizmann claimed that their housing problem had been exacerhated by the "wrong advice" given by aliya emissaries in New York and Texas.

"My husband and I decided to come on aliya immediately after we got married so that we could do our graduate work here and feel part of the country," related the wifc, a computer student in her early 20s. Both our emissaries told us to come on an A1 [ tomporary resident] visa. But now wo find that after being here for three and a half years, we have only 18 monthe of housing privileges left. And since we don't have any money, we'll never be ablc to buy a flat. If we had hoen advised to come on A2 [ student] visas, we would still have five more years of privileges.

"There are lots of young people like us in America who were given the wrong advice. We tried switching hack to student visas, but they didn't approve it. We came," she conclud-ed, "not sure that we would stay. But now that we're sure we want to stay, we won't be able to.'

At thie, Agency aliya department director-general Yehuda Dominitz asserted that even if the couple had started with student visas, they still would have heen ontitled to housing privileges for only five years after entering the country.

But the student disagreed. "We personally know of lots of people who have hoen on nudent visas for three years and then become temporary residents, getting a total of eight years of privileges. The government officials don't seem to know your regulations.

Aheorption Ministry directorthe government, said that bis employooo must work within laws and regulations, and can't offer more henefits to an Amorican profeesor than to any other American oleh.

Waldman pointed out that, from July 1, housing price ceilings will he much higher, and mortgages will he linked to the index, thus allowing the government to offer loans more than twice as large as those now given (although admittedly still far from equal to the cost of a Jerusalem or Tel Aviv apartment). The Rehovot orchard project might be feasible, and he agreed to look into it. "But you can find housing in Yavneh or Ashdod, and by American stan-dards, it isn't too far to drive from there to a joh in Tel Aviv," he main-

DULZIN told the professors that the meeting liscif was for him both en-joyable and informative.

"It is true that Israel builds very poorly and expensively, but we etill huild better today than we did only a few years ago." he said. "Don't expect the same standards that you had in America. All of us had to give up something for the privilege of ((v. ing in Israel."

The Agency chairman promised, however, that every family among the group that decidee, come what may, to stay (n Israsl will be he(ped. "We'll 'find a solution for your housing prohlem." he declared. "We will make you a test case."

Commenting on criticism of Agency bureaucrats and emisearles, Duizin admitted that Israel has "a terrible hureaueracy. Our hurcaucracy helongo to undcrdcvcloped countries - and many of the bureaucrats came from Eastern Europe and Arab lands where the accepted mentality is that the eltizen bas to prove that he is not guilty .'

Summing up, the President said that meeting people who want to come on aliya but who are disheartened hy conditions in the coun-try is "unbearable."

Offering come practical advicc, he asked the professors to write their easo hietoriee and specific complaints and present them in a file to Waldman, who would look into each one and try to find a solution.

When Navon left for another appointmeni, the professors staved on in the reception hall, cornering the Agency and governmant officials and pressing them for concrete proposals. Most of the potential olim were somewhat disappointed that no one suggested a change in the visa laws or second to appreciate the fact that Americans are "different." But all seemed a hit awed hy the experience of unburdening their com-plaints at this exaited level.

GARDENER'S CORNER/Walter Frankl

THE IDEA of "hanging gardens" is oriental in origin and thousands of years old. Ancient peoplee not only favoured the cultivation of edible field and garden plants, but also grew flowers, shrubs and trees for ornamental purposes. Gardeners in ancient Rome and Egypt knew how to graft plants and created new specimens of decorative flowers. The great achievement was "hanging gardens" that were one of the "seven wonders" of the ancient world. Who built them and why we don't know for sure. There are two versions.

The first mentions the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar (605-562 B.C.E.) as the creator of these terraced gardens in honour of Amytis, bls Medlan wife. Nebnchadnezzar destroyed. Jerusalem in 585 B.C.E. and led the Jews into the exile of Bab-El (God'e-Gate) 'along the Euphrates. It could early days of human history and are still being made. A visit to the area around Nablus or Gaza will show that basket production is allve and well. The Bihle notes (Leviticus 7:2): "And the Lord spake unto Moses saying... take Aon and his sons with him ... and a basket with unleavened bread."

A twisted hacket from Bar Kochha's time (132-35 C.E.) was one of the main discoveries of Prof. Yigae( Yadin'e archaeological team in the mountain cavee near the Dead Sea. Baskets played an important role in the recent Shavuot holiday. Kindergarter and elementary school children danced with truit-filled and flower-decorated baskets and sang the traditional "hag habikurlm" song: "Saleinu al k"tefeinu...." (our shoulder baskets...) Forms, Garden centres and florist sbops sell manufactured wire basket forms about 20-35cm. in diameter soluble form. Plants. - Ask me what and 15-20cm. at their (owest point at the base. Most are round, some oval or square-chaped. They are made of strong galvanized or plastic-coated wire so as to be rustproof. You can. of course, create yourself more exotic forms, using ordinary chicken wire. Also pottery, copper vessels and even common flower pots or plastic containers can be placed into string or wire hangers and changed into "hanging gardens." Macramé hangers are ornamental trimming of knotted twine or threads, which have become popular again. Excavations of old Egyptian and Peruvian tombs uncovered wellconaerved plecee of anclent macramé knitting, which also seemed to serve similar decorative purposes. (This is another example of a prevailing trend to "return to the roois" in flower decoration.) Preparing and planting. Place the basket over a bucket or other large container. Fill the bottom and the inner frame work of the hasket with fibrous sphaenum moss (kavool in Hebrew). Then add eeveral handfuls of compost, mixed with come humos of charcoal, to the centre of the basket. Water thoroughly with a watering can until the filling is soaked. Wait 10 minutes or so to let the surplus water drip out. Then make holes and plant. The best way is to use plants grown in yoghurt cupe or "jiffy" pots and to insert them with their pot soil and root hall intact.

After planting, cover the ground surface between the plants with a 2-3 cm. thick layer of vermiculite (grade 4) and spread on a teaspoon-ful of a general fertilizer; then water again and finally hang the planted hasket on a book or a tree branch. Make cure first that the hook or the tree branch is capable of supporting the basket's weight. Fertilize again every two weeks.

Now I'll tell you what each ingredlent of the filling material means for the plants: Pest - holds the imoisture. Compost provides acidity and prevents rot. Vermicuilte bolds in the enrface moisture and protects the plants against draught. General fertilizer provides all the necessary plant food minerals in a concentrated, easily

tion "Hallel," is named after and inspired by Psaims 113-118, which constitute the so-called Hallel prayer, containing a sequence of six bymns of thanksgiving and praise. Yet it uses no text. The "singing" of the words bas been integrated (nto in-strumental lines in the orcbestral texture. For the first time Orgad uses a big. orchestra and treatee most im-pressive orchestral sonorities. 'Hallel' starts with great, continuou clusters. Above and in these come melodic phrases, themes and chantlike prayer tunes. These mslodic phrases, appearing in the strings and particularly in the brass, are utterings of praise and thanksgiving eung by single instruments in strict prosody and in patterns of cantillation, as if performed by a single man'e volce, expressing the Hallels of the individual.

four horns and orchestra: Mussorgsky-Ravel: "Pictures at an Exhibition." SHERIFF'S LAST "Of Men and Music" concerts for this season convincingly .- connected the subject, musical challenges, to all the plecee presented. We empathized with the s-year-old Mozart, facing the challenge of writing a sympbony, with Dittersdorf trying to turn the clumsy double-bass into a solo instrument, and so on up to the tremendous challenge Ravel must have felt in orcbestrating Mussorgsky's "Pictures." The Mozart symphony, especially the first and eccond movements, la an almost unbelievable achievement even for a genius. The fact that this symphony contains the same four note motif as Mozart'e last and greatost eymphony (No.41, Jupiter"), as explained hy Sheriff, must have been to many of the listeners another exciting proof of the mystery-heyond-ue called Mozart. The "Pietures" also contained another challenge, that of performance. Sheriff met lt with confidence The other two plecee were not as successful. Dittersdorf's concerto is a terrible bore, at the best a musical joke. The soloist, however, contributed to its failure. We all know the limitations of the double-bass in terms of tone and musical expreesion, but certain players do achieve much more than Mr. Marek did. Schumann'e Konzertstuck le a beautiful piece, but the four horns created such a thick and opaque texture that only with great difficulty could one distinguish the various voleon within the quartet and the preponderance of the quartet within the general texture.

The second version is that the "hanging gardens" were built in the ninth century to honour the legendary Assyrian queen Semiramis. Their huilder is said to be her husband, King Ninus, founder of the Assyrian Empire and of the town of Nineveh --- today Mosul.

kinds of plants are suitable for hanging containers, and my answer will "All plants!"

You are not, of course, going to plant an eucalyptus tree in a hanging basket. But you can grow succulents and cactus plants, ferns, evergreens, common annuals or perennials, flowering trailers like lantana delicatissima (purple flowers). creeping verebena (white, blue, red. pink and purp(e), ivy of all kinds. hanging geraniume, begonia semper florens (white, pink, red), all kinds of epring hulb flowers (plant in early October), vinca (major and minor), tagetes crecta, lobelia pendula, alyesum (lobularia maritlma), Coarnation, ageratum or zonal kinds of perlargonium and fuchsias for the centre, and (vy-leaved varieties for decorating the aldes. Many overgreens like asparague sprengeri, opldcrplant ( chlorophytum) and the wandering Jew ( zebrina pendula) are especiallly attractive with their branches extending down from above. You have a hig choice of plants, but don't over crowd your basket; its shallow depth will not allow too close a planting Six to eight plants for a hasket with '80 cm. diameter should be the norm.

Plants that normally grow upright like fuchsia or carnation can be trained to become droopers. Encourage this by bending the stams downwards, clowly and earefully fixing them in their new position with ome not too heavy stones. The law of gravity will soon take over

If you are feeling practical grow all kinds of kitchen herbs (by oced) or strawberries (hy runner cuttings) in your little hanging gardens.

Watering. Hanging baskets need regular watcring - daily, and on very hot and dry days, twice a day. The smaller the basket, the more water is needed. This is quite understandable because the exposed surface on all sides of a hasket dries quicker than a garden hed. The best time to water is in the carly morning or late aftornoon. Water your haskets either hy a hose fixed with a spraying rosette (don't use a strong stream!) or elimh on a small, sturdy ladder, and water with a emall watering ean. Try not to damage the plants. Water just until you soe the surplus dripping out. You can also place a fine-spray eprinkler on an upright (1 metre high) stand and open the tap for h5-10 minutes dally. according to the prevailing temperature.

DON'T WAIT. Early June is a good time to plant hanging baskets, the next hest planting season le Septemher-Octoher. Hanging baskets, with a variety of flowers and decorative foliage, are a pleasant addition for beautifying a wall, a terrace, a pergola, a patio or a porch. Thoy make overything in and around your garden, even your trees. more friendly.

All of Orgad'e famous intervals and euccessione of intervals are heard again. These passages alternate with more activo, polyphonie passages. An innate, praycr-like melodic passage cummarizes the whole work and prepares for the ending.

"Hallel" introduces powerful diseonant eonorltles, captlvating melodic motifs, mysterious murmurings in the strings and huge climaxes. The composer seems to have succeeded in comhining organically two apparently opposed things - rich and clearly definable melos and contemporary orchestral textures.

The work was eplendidly performed hy Mr. Bertini and the orchcetra. The Jerusalcm Symphony has taken enormoue strides forward and now plays as a homogeneous, highly disclplined body. Mr. Bertini put his soul into the work. The concort also included a noble

New factory in Ramat Hovav to produce rare chemical

By AARON SITTNER Jerusalem Post Reporter

A modest new industrial structure in Ramat Hoyay, 12 kilometres south of Bcersheha, this aftarnoon becomes the fourth chemical plant In the world to produce the rare chemical anisic aldehyde.

Owner of the plant le Charlee Bendhelm, of New York, president of Philipp Brothers Chemicals Incorporated, an American company with six chemical factories in the U.S.

In an interview with Thc Jsrusalem Post last week. Bendheim said: "Though my firm produces a wide linc of chemicals, we never went in for anisic aidehyde. which is an intermediate chemical used in the manufacture of fragrances and antihiotics, and as an important additive for electroplating sojutions.

'As far as I know, only three firme are producing anisic aldehyde at this time. One is in Britain and the other two in the States. With the new type of penieillin now being developed, we expect a widening market for this chemical. We project our first year's output at Ramat Hovav to reach $3.5m. worth of anisic aldehyde, and we expect to sell 80 per cent of our output overseas.

Chemical producers are shy when describing their processes, and Bendhelm would only say that anisie aidehyde ie "a liquid and a petrochemical derivative which we shall react in a unique process at Ramat Hovav.

"In 1974 I became a little bored, so I purchased two chemical companies bere, just for the fun of it. Onc was Folkman & Dr. Kofier, in Petah Tikva, manufacturers of pre-mixes for animal feed, vitamins and minerals. The other was Koffolk Chemical Works, of Jerusalem, a synthesizor of vltamins for reterinary use."

Two years after acquiring these firms "just for the fun of it," they were awarded the government's Outstanding Exporters Award, for increasing exports by 55 per cen during a 12-month period. As for output value, it will reach $9,600,000 by the end of this year, up from about $5m. in 1975.

Egypt strives to reduce its 1978 trade deficit of $2.6b.

CAIRO (AP). - Egypt's halance of payments deficit in 1978 amounted to $2.6b, and action was being sought to enlarge exports and decrease imports without delay, the Minister of State for Economic Cooperation announced Saturday. The outlook may look dim, but the bulk of imports was in the form of capital commoditics, "a fact that accounts for our long-range optimism in cconomic rectitude," the minister, Gamal Nazer, told an American-Egyptian conference on trade beld here Attending the four-day conference were representatives of 700 Egyptian export firms, along with experts from the U.S. Agency for Inter-national Development and the Ford Foundation.

"Exports soon will play a crucial role in acccierating Egypt's economic development in the new era of peace (with Israel)," said 'New measures arc un-Nazer. derway to ease export restrictions and to open new markets for our exports." During 1973, bc said, Egypt's imports amounted to $8.64b., compared with $980m. worth of exports.

He urged the conference to seek ways of diversifying Egyptian exports and exploring new markets in Western countries.

Britain's trade balance

The Trade Department said Bri-tain had a visible trade deficit of £1.508b. ($3.12h.) in the months January to April. That's an average deficit of £377m. ($780m.) cach month

Even allowing for so-called "invisible" earnings from banking, in-surance and tourism, the monthly trade deficit averaged out at £251m. ($520m.), the Trade Department said.

This compares with a monthly trade surplus of £101m. ($209m.) during the second half of last year.

Navy changes mind on 100 km. limit for Israel's Sinai coast fishermen

By YA'ACOV FRIEDLER Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. - The Israel Navy has rescinded its order hinding the coun-try's trawler fleet to observe a 100 km. limit off the Sinai coast, The Post learned yesterday.

The order was issued on May 25. when El-Arish was returned to the Egyptians. It aroused much anger among the fishermon, who con-aidered the navy as being "more Catholie than the Pope" by forcing them to observe much more than the international 12-mile territorial waters limit.

Fiebermen'e union secretary Itamar Katz told The Post last night that some of the 20 boats had already returned to the fishing grounds to try their luck at the greater depths of about 100 fathoms (180 metrea) beyond the territorial limits. They would be unahic to catch any of the lucrative shrimps at that depth, he said. "But if the catches will just eover the cost of running the boats, it'll be better than keeping them idle throughout the summer. It costs over IL5,000 a day for cach boat." he added.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Minietry has promised the fishermen to tide them over the in-terim period, until the future of the fleet would be determined. In the expectation that the promise will be made good and in view of the navy's to 381. General Bank gained one, and Mizrahi continued to be actively traded, rising hy two Mortgage bank issues continued to move to higher ground. Official announcement of the purchase of the government's sharee in Tefahot hy the Relchmann brothers of Toronto and by United Mizrahi Bank created sharp demand for the mortgage bank's securities. The ordinary registered and bearer shares rose by no less than 10 per cent each, the preferred (B) nharee were 9.6 per cent higher, and registered preferred were "huyers only."

Carmel (B) joined the "buyers only" club and was fixed at 316. Ampal was a good feature, rising by 53 points to 588.

Profit-taking was the order of the day in the insurance sector. Arych was 30 lower at 822. Hassneh (r) was down by 20 to 368. Yardenia IL1 lost 18 while the IL5 shares were 14 lower. Securitas lost 20 to 362. Zur (B) was down hy 13 to 360.

A mixed pattern developed in the real estate and land development group. ILDC recouped Thursday's loss and gained nine, to 214. Mehadrin gained 20 to 990, but Neot Aviv was down by a similar figure to 528.

A contrasting pattern developsd in the oll shares, which are still reacting to the prospects of a possible commercial discover at Ashdod. Oil exploration of Paz finally traded and was up by 6.5 points to 155, in very heavy trading. Naphtha was hit by profittaking and was down by 42 to 515. Lapidot (R) "buyers only," as were its bearor shares.

Industrials were mixed. Molett did not trade yesterday as the company announced 1978 financial results. Polgat announced an interim dividend in cash in the order of 10 per cent. Frutarom was ex-dividend but after its price was adjusted, it rose by six to 94.

Investment shares also traded in a mixed pattern. Eigar was "huyere only." Paz Investment (R) was "sellers only." but the hearer shares were traded and fell hy more than 7 per cent as a result of profit-taking.

possible by the agreement reached after last year's protracted seamen's strike. Seamen's unions gave management freedom of action in commercial matters, which had made possible celling off 12 old and inefficient vessels.

We can now eee the light at the end of the tunnel of the worldwide shipping slump, which lasted five years. The situation now favours new acquisitions on the still depressed construction market," Zim board chairman Haim Stoessel and general manager Yebuda Rotem, told a press conference here yesterday. Two of the ships are to be hullt at the Israel shipyards in Haifa, provided the yard can match international prices. This would entail a government subsidy similar to the 25 to 30 per cent European governments grant their yards to ensure employment. "We shall be ready to pay just a little more here in order to favour local manufacture," Rotem said. Presenting the shipping com-pany'o 1978 balance sheet, the two top executives noted that despite the heavy losses the firm has managed to continue operating, unlike other shipping lines. They blamed the red ink on the continued shipping slump, the scamen's strike, estimated at costing between $12m. and $18m.; the jossee incurred hy the closure of Iranian ports to Zim, the fire on board one of the big container ships, and zimilar misbaps. Zim had nevertheless managed to keep its head above water, unlike many other sbipping companies, the Stoessel said that financially 1978 had heen a year of consolidation, ineluding the sale of old ships, $30m. in capital raised from emissions in Israel, and the eccuring of long-term loans from international banks. This had improved the company'e liquidity, its reserves for fleet expansion and its revolving capital situation. During the year the company had successfully converted its foreign currency liabilities to the dollar and decided to continue its higher than usual depreciation policy, be eaid. Haifa as its terminal port. In addition, negotiations are in an advanced stage for the construction of six emaller, 450-container ships for the European and Mediterranean trade, at a cost of about $60m. Two of these ships are to be huilt in Haifa, with the European yard's consent. and will provide full employment of the Israeli vard.

Another six container ships, with a capacity of 700 containers, are to be ordered for the Eilat lines, at a total cost of about $80m.

Rotem announced that Zim and the Negev Phosphates Company had together founded a new line, Negev-Star, which is to carry the three million tons of phosphates to he exported annually. The line will also bring imported bulk cargoes, like iron, timber and chemicale to Israel. Zim, together with the El-Yam shipping company, are 'candidates" for the import of the three million tons of coal the new Hadera power station will be needing. Rotem stressed.

He noted that thanks to the end of the strife with the seamen's unions, which had continued for many years, the company'e energies were now free to concentrate on getting a larger share of Israel's foreign trade, against the competition of foreign firms, which had entered the market over the years.

A hig effort would also be made to conserve ships' fuel by reducing speeds and by other measures. He noted that fuel was a major expenditure, with the total outlay having gone up from $65m, to $100m. during the past year alone.

He also said the policy of "muddl-

Officials eaid that the total grain 'crop "most likely" will range hetween 170 million and 210 million metric tons, well below Moscow's planned goal of 226.8 million this vear.

A department report in mid-May - not an official forecast - indicated the Soviet grain harvest could range between 183 million and 223 million metric tons.

A harvest of 180 million metric tons, although down sharply from Moscow's goal and last year's huge harvest, still would be the sixth largest in history.

"If conditions for halance of the growing eeason turn out to be quite avourable, the final total grain output could yet reacb or exceed 210 million tons," the report said. "If, on the other hand, conditions...should continue rather unfavourable, the outturn might even he helow 170 million tons," which would make it the smallest since 1970, it said.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds. Department experts, grain traders and farmers watch conditions in the Soviet Union closely for signs that might mean its import requirements will increase or decline.

Shamir speaks out

KNESSET SPEAKER Yltzhak Shamir deserves a vote of thanks for saying in public what most acute observers of the Israeli scene have been aware of for some time: the quality of Israel'e public life has been deteriorating dangerously and the frameworke of its political system are crumbling.

Shamlr has been understandably reticent about intervening. in his role as Knesset Speaker, in the burly burly of political life.

But be made his critical comments to a "Ma'ariv" interviewer, appropriately, in the midst of last week's Herut convention, which he sat through unobtrusively in a back ceat. That convention, in its lack of order and minimal decorum, not to mention eivility, was a good example of what Shamir was referring to. The five days in Metzudat Ze'ev, named after the founder of Revisionism, Ze'ev Jabotinsky, were enough to drive any true Jabotinskylte who ever took his mentor's ldeas of dignity and grace seriously, to despair.

Shamir explained that what he meant by the frameworks crumbling was that today's political parties were no longer parties in any meaningful sense of the word, and that the government was not a government.

He could have added that the Prime Minister was not funetioning as a prime minister should. Or in cruder terms, there has been no one minding the store during the two years that Mr. Begin has been immersed over his head, and by choice, in the peace negotiations and the spectacular ceremonies that have accompanied them

Nelther Mr. Begin nor Herut are solely responsible for the deterioration of public life, which raises questions, as Mr. Shamir put it, as to our capacity to govern ourselves. But Mr. Begin and Herut, two years after coming to power, can no longer hide behind the excuse that two years is insufficient time to correct the "damage done by 29 years of Labour misrule."

The dieheartening fact of the matter is that the present government has made not a dent in correcting any such "damage" but, to the contrary, has carried on where Labour, in its period of decline, left off.

The Prime Minister has not evinced interest in any matters outside the single issue of relations with the Arabs states and retention of the territories. This has been appropriately noted in another context by the Treasury's new advisor on economic planning, Prof. Assaf Razin, who reported on Begin's disinterest in the problems of inflation at a cabinet meeting be attended. The prime minister's intervention in yesterday's economic debate in the cabinet, is welcome, but comes a little late in the day. It is also hard to say whether Mr. Begin will persevere.

But the nature of Herut - and of the Likud - as a one-man operation, has made it politically impossible for Begin to appoint a number two man to take care of the home front, or for the party to impose such an appointment on an obdurate prime minister.

Some would say that his neglect is a sure-fire prescription for the electoral defeat of the Likud in the next elections. This is debatable. More important however is that continued neglect of the quality of public life and of the levels of domestic performance will spell catastrophe for Israel as a society and political

The reluctant Europeans

Far from protecting "parasites," the Histadrut protects cheap-labour industry. This has led to a drop in real wages and a shortage of labour for export projects, argues POST Economic Editor MEIR MERHAV.

THE HISTADRUT, eaid Deputy Defence Minister Mordechai Zipori at last weck's Herut convention, is the higgest Mafia in the world. All lt does is protect parasiles.

At about the same time, Finance Minister Simha Ehrlich, speaking before the manufacturers' convention, charged in more respectable tones that the Histadrut has been hamstringing his economic policles hy supporting any and all wage demands, however damaging to the economy, and that it bas virtually no control over the workers.

By contrast, the president of the Manufacturers' Association, Buma Shavit, told the same convention that his relations with the Histadrut are amicable, and that his discussions with Secretary-General Yeroham Meehel are conducted in an in-telligent and matter-of-fact manner.

When the leader of the employers praises the leader of the trade unlons, while the economic leadership of the country is hardly on speaking terms with the latter, something must be amiss. One would expect the opposite: the employers, whose in-terests conflict directly with those of labour, should be most at odds with the workers' representatives. whereas the government, which purports to represent the nation as a whole, should he fulfilling a mediating and conclustory role. But what at first appears paradoxical, even suspicious, really has two simple explanations.

First, the government is the coun-try'e higgest employer. It finds it to-creasingly painful, financially, economically and politically, to accede to the incessant wage demands wblch its inflationary policies provoke and never manage to satisfy.

Constantly groping for ad hoc solutions to celf-created prohlems, the government's answer to the nominal wage increases is to generate ever more inflation. The result is that the hudget remains an equation in which one factor is always missing; that the country's economic prohiems become ever more unsolvable; and that the government's electoral base begins to crumble rapidly. Hence the search for culprits.

This latter aspect leads to the eecond explanation for the government's animosity towards the Histadrut. For in reality the rabble-rousing elander that Zipori huried at the Histadrut, as well as the store. sedate complaints and accusations made by Ehrlich, have nothing to do with what the Histadrut does qua trade union.

THE OUTCRY is politically inspired, for the Histadrut is ruled by the Opposition and is its higgest — really its only — power hase. With a far-flung economic empire and sup-port at the grass-roots level of the shop floor, the Histadrut possesses a potential political power that becomes ever more menacing to the ruling coalition as the latter's policies - in foreign affairs no less than in more immediately visible matters - plot dead end. Realizing that, Zipori and Ehrlich last week fired the opening shot in the next election campaign. As against that, the amlcable relations between the Histadrut and the private employers are based not only on the latter's long-standing policy to steer clear of overt partypolitical conflict, but also on the former's moderation with respect to wage demands.

That moderation is no doubt large-ly due to the fact that the Histadrut is also the country's second-biggest employer, with interests that do not diverge too widely from those of private husiness.

It is also obvious that private employere, with far-reaching monopolistic power and in a sellers' market, can almost painlessly meet Mesbel's moderate demands by further jacking up their prices. But the rock upon which the peace between Buma Shavit and Yeroham Meshel ie built ie more deeply embedded than that. In tha first place, Mcshel has always been more preoccupied with the level of employment than with the level of wages. In part, this almost traumatic fear of unemployment may be a personal idiosyncrasy, rooted in Meshel's own early experiences.

Objectively, however, this overriding concern with full employment - in times of boom when it should and could he relegated to eecond place - plays into the hands of the employers in general and of the manufacturers in particular. The latter, like any bourgeoisle, shortsightedly want to maintain the status quo. They keep watch over the interests of existing industry, not those of industriee that might come into heing. They want to perpetuate the present structure of industry - a structure that is based predominantly on a labour-intensive branch.composition and labour-intensive technologies. Such a structure is founded on cheap lahour, Hence the employers' complaints about a shortage of labour. For at the wages they are willing to pay. they find that the increasingly skilled labour force, with expectations geared to the standards of industrially advanced countries, prefer oc-cupations other than those of factory hands.

HENCE, also, the manufacturers' fight - valiantly spearheaded by In-dustry Minister Gideon Patt - to maintain the high rates of customs protection behind which lowefficiency, cheap-labour production can flourish and profit.

Meshel supports that, for the exposure of this sheltered production to competitive imports may, in the short run, lead to the closure of inef-ficient enterprices. It doss not really can only "afford" low wages, Meshel's categorical imperative to protect all employment all the time at any cost forces him to adapt hie wage demands to what this type of industry can bear, and to he moderate.

Monday, June 11, 1979

The same ie true with respect to the now topical issus of subsidies to capital. After hamming and hawing for a day or so, Meshel ultimately rallied to the support of the manufac-turers' position. Although he must have been influenced in this also by the stand of the Histadrut enter-prises, hle argument was enlightening: If investment fails because eubsidiss ars cut, the smployment hase for the future will narrow. Once again, the fear of un-employment is the leifmotif in Meshel's reasoning. Without realiz-ing it, he thereby supports low wages.

BUT HAVE NOT wages risen considerably in the last year? Don't we all "know" that workers - by now gone completely wild with their in-satiable demands, and alded and abetted by a Histadrut which, according to Zlpori, chelters its "parasitic" membership, and accor-ding to Ehrlich, does not care what damage it does to the national economy — are much hetter off than they were before, particularly in the public sector?

Before writing this article, I ran a small opinion poll in the editorial of -fices of The Jerusalem Post. I asked a number of colleaguee: "Have real wages gone up in the last year?" With one exception, someone who knows the data, they all answered in the affirmative.

Well, it is simply not true, no matter what Messrs. Yebezkel Flomin, Arnon Gamy and others may have declared on various occasions, picking convenient dates for comparison.

According to the Bank of Israel report for 1978, real wages have remained unchanged, and in the public sector have fallen by 2 per cent. True, wages have fluctuated wildly from one quarter to the next, reflecting the constant ecc-caw between the inflationary erosion of nominal wages and their periodic compensatory increases.

The national accounts for 1978 just published show that bourly wages rose hy a nominal 51.4 per cent, while consumption prices went up by 54.2 per cent. The fall in real hourly wagee was therefore 2 per cent.

At the same time, the total wage bill in the business sector, as a proportion of its net national product, fell from 54.1 per cent in 1977 to 52.7 per cent in 1978 - this despite a 4.6 per cent increase in man-hours worked. While hourly wages in the business sector rose hy a nominal 55.3 per cent. the net national product per man-hour went up hy 60.3 per cent. Buma Shavit had good cause to tell his manufacturers what they must already have known from their profit and loss statements - that 1978 bad been a good year for business. Profits were up, whils

THE FIRST-TIME-EVER elections to a European parilament held this week-end, have evoked a somewhat lethargic response among the voters. There are two basic reasons. One is that the parilament is powerless. The other is that the European idea has not caught on.

These two shortcomings are inter-connected. What is the European community today? A committee on which tweive member-countries try to cooperate, mainly on economic matters. To the extent that a collective entity exists, it is not controlled by the parliament in Strasbourg, which exercises no more than advisory functions.

European unity possesses a framework, but no content as yct. It is possible that progress would have been more rapid had the community been confined to its six original founder-members. as De Gaulie desired. France and Germany, having overcome decades of intermittent wars between them. in particular have benefited from their propinquity. The success for them of the Common Market is reminiscent of an older history dating back to the coronation of Charlemagne as Emperor of the West. Britain was not included in the Carolingian Empire. Today its attitude is ambivalent. It considers Europeans foreigners. It does not want to be excluded from their club, hut does not relieh lts membersblp either.

The newly-elected, multi-lingual parliamentarians must deeldc whether to go on being what the British - especially the British left - would prefer: a taiking-shop for retired pollticlans. The alternative is to embrace the revolutionary principle that, in the course of time, they must replace the eeparate national parliaments as the sovereign law-making body for over 200 million Europeans.

This is the challenge. It involves a fundamental change in attitudes. The obstacle that holds up the integration of Europe is a latter-day parochiallem. Isolationists hoth on the extreme left and the extreme right present themselves as the watch-dogs of local independence, dcclaring that "they" — in Brussels and Strasbourg — are jolly well not going to rule over "us" — the nationals of Britain, France: Italy and Germany.

It took time, ages ago, before Cornwall became part of Bri tain, Normandy part of France, Lomhardy part of Italy and Bavaria and Prussia merged into a German state. Is the moment approaching when Britain, France, Germany and Italy merge into a united Europe? This is the cubject that the new European parliament has to ventilate. Unless and until they ean persuade the private citizens in all the 12 member-countries of the EEC that Europe today is "us" and not "them," European unlty will not get off the ground.

The national accounts also show that per capita private consumption went up by 5.7 per cent. The share of wages in the national income rose, in real terms, hy 3.7 per cent — less than the increase in man-hours worked. In other words, workers as a class worked more and got less for it.

INCISIVE DISCRIMINATION Gush Emunim zealots have formed their own armed vigilante groups to enforce "law and order" in Arab towns. Their announced intent is to disrupt any autonomy scheme. Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon wants to intersect the West Bank with four new roads linking belte of Jewish settlements strategically placed to divide heavily populated Arah regions - one of these settlements is even named Ariel. This name — make no mistake — is not of biblical origin, for here the Jews went as far as to contravene their religious abhorrence of conferring the name of a living person on a child, or a cettlement, or, usual-ly, even upon an institution.

This new analysis is clearly a superior tool, and its conclusions are definite and proof to any criticism. It is obvious that at last an international epproach has been found, the proponent of which has no reason to fear a hostile reaction. He will not be discredited, no Arab scholar or statesman will proclaim him perwhether somebody else in this part of the world should.

ADDRESS

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir. - I have just returned from a visit to the municipal kindergartens on Rehov Sheshet Hayamim in ths Ramat Eshkol quarter of Jerusalcm. Six hearing-impaired children are integrated in the two kindergarten classes there. Our staff of one special education teacher and a pedagogic assistant work in the third claseroom with each bearingimpaired child. Over this past Shabspeech so that the bearing-impaired child can hear it, learn it, and speak. I am sure that those who took that Item saw only the microphone and head-sets and thought they could be useful to them.

Unfortunately, this is not the first time that such equipment has been stolen, depriving our children of an opportunity to learn. I would like to suggest those who are responsible for punishing offenders, that they require volunteer work in our agen cy with deaf children as part of the rehabilitation programme.
